NEED HELP? FOLLOW THESE STEPS:

Contact your healthcare provider -- testing policies vary among local insurers. Most will provide tests with a referral from your doctor. Be sure to mention that you work in a nursing home or residential care facility for the elderly.

3. Do you live somewhere else?

Check with your local health department about testing options in your community. Most post information about community testing on their web pages.

You can also find a free, state-run testing site near you – visit covid19.ca.gov/testing-and-treatment - see QR Code to the right.

If you cannot access the web, call 1-888-634-1123.

Contra Costa Heath Services (CCHS) recommends recommends that anyone who works in a facility caring for older adults, or others at high risk of serious illness, gets tested monthly.
